Complements: They are obligatory. Sentence sounds odd without them.

Modifying phrases: They are optional. They feel “added on”.

Two types of modifying phrases, Adverbials, and Postmodifiers

Focus on adverbials

1. Adverb = a single word which tends to sit in the verb complex and modifies the verb, e.g.

*She [quickly ran Verb Complex] to the shops*

2. Adverbial = a phrase (often containing multiple words) which sits at the sentence periphery, and modifies the entire sentence, e.g.

*[Next Tuesday Adverbial] we'll sell our house [with any luck Adverbial]*

Function of adverbials

1. MANNER: She walks [with a slight limp]
2. PLACE: She plays cricket [in the park]
3. TIME: [On Tuesday] she sold the house

Function of adverbials

Discourse functions, e.g.

1. CHANGING TOPIC:

[Anyway], have you heard the news about Ruth?

2. EXPRESSING LOGICAL RELATIONSHIPS:

[However], she still couldn't lift heavy weights. (NB the sentence CONTRADICTS information in the preceding discourse, e.g. She trained hard. However she still couldn't lift heavy weights).

3. EXPRESSING AN OPINION:

[In my opinion] we should treat syntactic difficulties using recasts
